

ISIS - Question #1059

Why is there an ideal data directory

2012-08-24 03:15 PM - Jeff Anderson

Status:	Closed
Priority:	Normal
Assignee:	Stuart Sides
Category:	Infrastructure
Software Version:
Description
It is not clear why we need to have an ideal data directory. It seems the translation files in this directory could be part of the base directory structure.
Can this be fixed?
Related issues:
Related to ISIS - Recommendation #1170: Update the installation guide and GUI...		Acknowledged

History

#1 - 2012-08-30 10:18 AM - Stuart Sides

The ideal directory is for the ideal mission/camera. It is placed at the same level as the other missions. The directory currently only houses serial number translation files. Moving this directory into the base area would break the current convention of having each mission in its own directory in "data".

#2 - 2012-09-04 03:41 PM - Jeff Anderson

Okay ... solution to this problem is to update the installation guide to require the ideal directory as download like base. Also the GUI installer must be modified. Do we keep this ticket open for this fix?

#3 - 2012-10-04 09:18 AM - Stuart Sides

The question was answered and a post to fixed the identified problem was added.